

SACRED CALLING. COURAGEOUS CARE.

Nursing is not for the faint of heart. It demands patience and decisiveness, expert knowledge and specialized skills, and years of study and practice. The work can be mentally taxing, physically challenging, and emotionally exhausting.

At the University of Mary, nursing is a vocation. God equips our students with the gifts and graces they need as caregivers who uphold the dignity of every human life with heartfelt compassion and deep moral conviction. For more than 65 years we have been educating world-class nurses to serve patients, families, and communities across the country.

What Makes a 'Mary Nurse'?

Wherever they serve, Mary nurses are recognized by patients and colleagues alike as competent, caring, and courageous — servant leaders who advance the common good through person-centered care rooted in the teachings and traditions of the Catholic Church:

- Ensuring that every person, created in the image of God, has access to necessary treatments and therapies — especially the poor, the marginalized, and the underserved
- Acknowledging that health care professionals and their patients both have rights of conscience that must not be violated
- Approaching ethical dilemmas with keen perception, personal fortitude, and gracious understanding — asking not just can we, but more importantly should we?

Excellence Made Affordable

At Mary, we are committed to making your education as affordable as possible, with generous scholarships and options that reduce your time to degree — including our innovative Tuition-Free Nursing Academy.

NATIONALLY RANKED, ETHICALLY GROUNDED NURSING EDUCATION

Inspired by our patron, Saint Gianna Beretta Molla — a physician, wife, and mother — the Saint Gianna School of Health Sciences at the University of Mary prepares health care professionals to provide exceptional care at every stage of life. Our Larry and Eileen Weigum College of Nursing is known for nursing specialists who provide exceptional, patient-centered health care and strive to enhance nursing practice and improve patient outcomes.
